iEARN Pakistan

February 29—Council Members Andrew Burkes and Mike Laster welcomed Ms. Farah Kamal, Executive Director of iEARN Pakistan, a non-profit organization that links schools globally, to discuss the establishment of a relationship between the Houston Academy of International Studies and Habib Public School in Karachi, Pakistan. The following day a Memorandum of Understanding linking the two schools as formally signed. The meeting and memorandum were facilitated by the Houston-Karachi Sister City Association.

Shanghai Sports Commission, People's Republic of China

March 1—Mayor Annise Parker met with Mr. Li Yuyi, Director General of the Shanghai Sports Commission, and a 5-member delegation of Commission members. Mayor Parker and Mr. Li discussed how Shanghai could benefit from emulating Houston's management models for its sports facilities and recreational events, outlining opportunities for potential future cooperation. The city of Shanghai hosted the 2010 World Expo, which was attended by over 73 million visitors.

Shanghai Public Diplomacy Association, People's Republic of China

March 22—Mayor Annise Parker and Chairman Feng Guoqin, Chairman of the Shanghai Public Diplomacy Association, inaugurated the beginning of a new partnership between the governments of Houston and Shanghai, leading to an exchange of City promotional videos, which both cities agree to display publicly free of charge over a six-month period of time. This partnership was formalized via a Memorandum of Understanding signed by Chief Development Officer Andy Icken and Mr. Chen Qiwei, Standing Member of the Shanghai Public Diplomacy Association. Beginning March 22, the Shanghai video may be viewed on the Houston Municipal Public Access Channel, at the George R. Brown Convention Center and the City of Houston's Visitors Center, and it may be viewed online at www.globalhouston.org and www.houstontx.gov/intltrade. The Houston video will be shown on Shanghai's International Channel, in the Xintiandi and Xujiahui shopping districts, and may be viewed online at www.shio.gov.cn and www.eastday.com.

City of Stavanger, Kingdom of Norway

March 23—Mayor Annise Parker met with the Honorable Christine Sagen Helgø, Mayor of Stavanger. Mayor Parker and Mayor Helgø discussed the expansion of ties between the two cities and their sister city relationship. Mayor Helgø's visit comes as part of the biannual youth exchange program between Houston and Stavanger, which promotes goodwill and cultural understanding. In 2014, the Houston/Galveston-Stavanger Sister City Association will send a reciprocal delegation to Stavanger.

Sister Cities of Houston

Each month, the Mayor's International Newsletter will bring you the latest updates on Houston's ties to its 17 international sister cities, which in turn are maintained by corresponding sister city associations in Houston. Members of these associations are dedicated to fostering cultural and educational exchanges, business development and trade, and humanitarian projects between Houston and its sister cities. This first installment of this series highlights the Sister Cities of Houston, Inc. (SCH), an umbrella non-profit organization that helps to maintain relationships between its constituent associations. We sat down with Ms. Ellen Goldberg, President of SCH, to speak about her experiences of leading SCH and her outlook for the future.

Q: Can you tell us about how you would like to see the sister city relationships grow and develop?

A: In the short term, we hope all of Houston's sister city associations continue to initiate beneficial exchanges. A good example is the Houston-Grampian Association's annual nursing exchange program with Houston, which annually awards scholarships in a competition that sends nursing students from Houston and Aberdeen, Scotland to each other's cities and universities. Longer term, I would like to see the sister cities serve as a foundation from which citizen-to-citizens initiatives can grow and sustain themselves.

Q: What are some of the most successful initiatives the sister city associations have been a part of?

A: Most recently the Houston-Karachi and Houston-Guayaquil Sister City Associations facilitated donations of surplus fire engines and equipment to fire departments in their respective cities. The Houston/Galveston-Stavanger Sister City Association organizes a cultural exchange program biannually, which has won awards from Sister Cities International for its work three times. The Houston-Leipzig Sister City organized a fundraising effort to design a stained glass window in Houston that was installed in Leipzig's historic St. Thomas Church, and was recognized with the Sister Cities International Innovation Arts Award in 2010 for the initiative.

Q: What is your most anticipated project?

A: I am very excited about the proposed Sister Cities of Houston International Promenade. We are developing a space between Bastrop and Broad Streets, leading to Dynamo Stadium, which we hope will provide a base for the international community of Houston to build from. It will be the first tangible representation of the sister cities concept in Houston, and can serve as a foundation for further development of the East End of Downtown.

2012 Economic Development Mission to Brazil

March 24-April 1—Mayor Annise Parker led the 2012 City of Houston Economic Development Mission to the Federative Republic of Brazil, joined by a 33-member delegation comprised of City of Houston officials and leaders from the oil and gas, technology, medical, and education sectors. The mission was a collaborative effort of the City of Houston, Greater Houston Partnership and Brazil-Texas Chamber of Commerce (BRATEC) with the aim of strengthening existing ties with Brazil and developing new connections.

“I am honored to lead Houston’s first economic development trip to Brazil with such a distinguished delegation, and to promote Houston as Brazil’s first point of entry into the U.S. market,” Mayor Parker said, referencing the positive trade ties between the two regions. Total trade between Houston and Brazil in 2011 was valued at $15.5 billion, which represents an increase of over $13 billion since 2000.

During the weeklong visit, the delegation traveled to Brazil’s two largest cities, São Paulo and Rio de Janeiro. The Mission’s itinerary was constructed to reflect Mayor Parker’s core objectives: promote Houston, engage potential partners, learn from the perspective of our counterparts in city government, and leave in place lasting friendships. Towards this end, delegates attended carefully planned business events, which included information sessions with high-level Brazilian agencies and networking opportunities with key decision-makers in both cities. Mayor Parker and the delegation took additional opportunities to study the urban innovations and infrastructure accomplishments in both cities, exploring the enormous Via Quatro transit complex in São Paulo as well as the Smarter Cities Management Center in Rio de Janeiro.

The trade mission also resulted in the signing of five individual agreements, building a framework for enriched ties between Houston and Brazil. Mayor Parker signed city agreements with Mayor Gilberto Kassab of São Paulo and Mayor Eduardo Paes of Rio de Janeiro, promising collaboration over a two year period in key areas of mutual interest. Houston-based Rice University signed an agreement with the University of São Paulo, and Lonestar Community College signed agreements with the Brazilian Institute of Petroleum and the Federal University of Rio de Janeiro.

Mr. Ricardo Peduzzi, Executive Director of BRATEC and Houston mission delegate, said of the trade mission that “Brazil and Houston have shared interests since the early days of Brazil’s oil and gas, technology, and aerospace industries, amongst others. In that setting, Mayor Parker’s Mission represented the first official expression of these mutual interests among the governments on both sides.

“The empathy that Mayor Parker’s Mission has created among the political business leadership has scaled the tone of dialogue to a higher level, revealing long term opportunities that can now move faster with the Prefeituras (Brazilian Mayors’ Offices) and City Hall support.”
