Houston-Karachi Sister City Association

Each month the Mayor's International Newsletter brings you the latest updates on Houston's ties to its 17 international sister cities, each of which is maintained by a corresponding sister city association in Houston. In this installment, we sat down with the President of the Houston-Karachi Sister City Association (HKSCA), Mr. Muhammad Sheikh.

Q: Could you share with us some of the projects you are working on at present?

A: As you know, Karachi is Houston's youngest sister city relationship, established just three years ago in 2009, and I am proud to say that although young we have been highly productive! Recently we assisted the US State Department's Youth Exchange Student (YES) program, which resulted in the formation of a partnership between Habib Public School of Karachi and the Houston Academy of International Studies. We would like to expand this model to give students a valuable opportunity to engage in dialogue and an authentic learning experience with the use of web 2.0 technologies. We are also establishing a health care initiative between Houston physicians and Karachi's primary public hospital whereby doctors in Karachi are able to get secondary opinions from Houston physicians. This program will initially focus on oncology, where Karachi faces a great shortage of medical experts.

Q: One of your most recent projects was coordinating the visit of the Karachi Chamber of Commerce and Industry (KCCI). How do you plan to build off this recent visit?

A: I strongly believe that both cities should encourage exchanges of delegation for development of trade, economic, scientific and cultural relationships. The KCCI visit concluded an agreement for mutual cooperation between the Greater Houston Partnership and KCCI, which promotes business opportunities (including airports, seaports, and air and maritime cargo in both of our regions). The agreement also promotes trade and industrial missions between both of our regions to establish joint-venture projects. In the spirit of promoting exchange, HKSCA plans to organize meetings and seminars in both cities to inform our business people about investment, joint-venture, and other advantageous trade opportunities. HKSCA and GHP will be exploring the possibility of bringing a trade mission to Karachi under City leadership as well!

Q: What do you have planned for HKSCA in the foreseeable future?

A: HKSCA would like to encourage both City governments to exchange information and best practices, particularly in the fields of city governance, urban planning, and inter-governmental relations. We would also like to promote an exchange between ports, in fact Karachi is home to Pakistan's two largest ports, which together account for over 95% of Pakistan's total sea trade. Although we live in very different environments, I know that there is much that could be learned by contrasting our cities' respective experiences and how we approach solving challenges.

Q: What has been some of HKSCA's most successful work in the past?

A: When floods devastated Pakistan's Sindh Province, which is home of Karachi, HKSCA brought together 45 community organizations in Houston in an alliance to organize relief efforts for flood victims. The alliance raised over $80,000 in funds for relief and donated over $100,000 worth of goods to more than 1,200 families. Beyond offering an incredible amount of humanitarian relief, HKSCA was recognized by Sister Cities International for this effort and will be presented with the 2011 Innovative Humanitarian Assistance Award!

If you would like to learn more about HKSCA, please contact Mr. Muhammad Sheikh at sluvfss@yahoo.com.
